Time Will Tell If State's National Image Will Improve With 1961 Action

IF IT COMES OFF, and only time will tell, the 1961 Michigan Legislature may find that its greatest accomplishment was in that intangible and controversial realm known as "national image."

Tight budgets and no new taxes concrete actions of this year's session, could well lead to a reversal of the national picture of Michigan as a perennial problem state.

Scars from the "Cash Crisis" of 1959 and the tax squabble of 1960 will remain, but the wounds might at least be allowed to heal.

True, Michigan will still be beset by problems of unemployment, automation, labor disputes, rural-urban bickering and controversy between the two major political parties, but the sorrowful and oftentimes needless damage wrought by stalemate and blunder and faulty financial management may be on the way to repair.

If so, both parties can claim part of the credit despite a Republican Legislature and a Democratic governor.

While education, mental health and other vital areas of state government will have to get along on less money than they had hoped to have available for fiscal 1961-62, it is hoped they can get through one more year of austerity.

It is after all only something of a political misfortune that at least token increases in the tight operating budget's recommended by Legislative appropriating committees for the crucial areas of government weren't increased.

The willingness to add was there, but disagreements over the means and who would get the credit prevented any increases.

Republican lawmakers frankly say they are happy with the budget as it was passed. In fact, they are anxious to claim credit for what they hope is a return to fiscal responsibility for Michigan.

Gov. John B. Swainson wants it clearly understood that any cutbacks in state service, education or otherwise, are the fault of the GOP.

But privately, many Democratic senators and representatives are not too displeased with the $462.6 million operating budget, which is, of course, a record high for Michigan.

The reasoning is that if it takes a year of belt-tightening to prevent future unfavorable publicity such as the recent Saturday Evening Post article on "Michigan, the Problem State," then the price may not be too high.

Important part of the price involves the risk to the quality of higher education. Despite the record budget, educators are faced with providing facilities and education for a still more startling record number of students.

As salary increases are eliminated or reduced, as facilities like libraries and classrooms become more outmoded and overcrowded, staff people lose enthusiasm for their work. The most talented instructors find it easier to accept offers from other institutions where they are paid more, have better conditions. The mediocre get fewer offers and tend to stay. At the same time, it becomes more difficult to interest first-rate instructors to join the Michigan faculty. The result becomes an average or less-teaching staff.

It is not increased work loads these college people object to, it is lack of tools and lack of what they consider appreciation or respect for education.

The people of Michigan must decide soon if they want to support higher education at a level which will only grind out students after mediocre training period or at a level which will permit true university training.

"You have less money per student than previously," the Legislature tells education administrators, "but you had better not limit your enrollment so that qualified students cannot get in or you'll reckon with us."

The only thing that can give is the quality of the education.

The key to the 1961 Michigan Legislature rating in the historical record book may be found in the national economic picture overall.

If there is recovery in the durable goods market, it is almost sure to be reflected in a rosier fiscal picture for Michigan.

Budgets are based on pessimistic revenue estimates. Swainson actually formulated his recommendations on revenue estimates some $15-million higher than those used by lawmakers.

There could be a surplus of revenue, which he applied to the state deficit, estimated at $82 million by June 30.

While governmental theorists can argue endlessly about the desirability of operating in the black, there can be no doubt that it looks good on paper, and that is where a great many of Michigan's fiscal troubles have been, on paper.

One more bright spot in terms of national prestige is in the offering for the state.

Two Local Naval Reservists In Review

Lt(jg) James D. Hall, USNR, Star Route, Grayling, and Marshall W. Atkinson, seaman recruit, USNR, Karen Woods, Grayling, will participate in the Annual Military Inspection and Review at the Naval Air Station, Grrosse Ile, Michigan on Saturday, June 3, 1961. The inspection will be conducted by Rear Adm. Arnold W. McKee, Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training with headquarters at Glenview, Illinois.

The Naval Air Reserve, appropriately named the "Weekend Warriors," is composed of officers and men from all walks of life. They devote one weekend each month and two weeks each year to active training duty in order to maintain top effectiveness for pilots and aircrewmen.

"You have less money per student than previously," the Legislature tells education administrators, "but you had better not limit your enrollment so that qualified students cannot get in or you'll reckon with us."

The only thing that can give is the quality of the education.

Lost - $228 Billion!

Who gets hurt when inflation sets in, and the dollar depreciates?

A report made by the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy may help you answer that question.

It says that a loss of over $228 billion, or 57 per cent, purchasing power has been experienced by savers in average holdings in six categories for the period 1939 to 1959-60 because of this depreciation. The six categories are U. S. savings bonds; time deposits in banks; savings capital in savings and loan associations; life insurance in force; annuities paid out, and social security trust and unemployment funds.

Just about everybody has been hit, in one or more of these savings categories. And most of the people, obviously, have small or moderate means. The inflationary blow is particularly cruel to those who live on fixed incomes, as provided by annuities, social security payments, and soon.

The dollar's value in purchasing power has gone down by more than half, in a dismayingly short period of time. Will we have the strength, the wisdom, and the political courage to save what is left of it?

And Then He Screamed . . .

Most people pay their federal income taxes via the withholding system. The employer keeps back a certain percentage of the paycheck and turns it over to the government.

Many workers don't have any accurate idea of just how much is deducted, so some concerns have adopted novel ways of driving the lesson home.

One, for instance, set up two adjoining pay windows. At the first each employee was given his full check, without deductions. But he had to go at once to the second window and shell out his tax for that pay period.

Another used a different means of achieving the same purpose. An employee whose pay was $100 a week was given the full amount, without any deductions, for three weeks. But at the end of the fourth week the pay envelope held a paltry $23.60. When he screamed in protest the tax story was explained to him.

His four-week bill was $76.40, and the company had taken it all in one big bite, instead of four smaller ones. A publication of the Florida Power and Light Company, after telling of these two devices to make employees more tax conscious, observes: "Employees who suddenly have been jolted by the size of the tax bite, usually develop a less complacent viewpoint. They see the connection between high federal spending and the jump of tax money chopped from their paychecks."

The country needs more of that kind of jolting of the taxpayers.

HAPPY LITTLE JUNE BRIDE

Interesting Events In Grayling 23 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 23 YEARS AGO

June 2, 1938

There were 175 in attendance at the three-day session of the State Audubon society held here over the last weekend. The headquarters were at Grayling Tourist park, where the visitors found ample and pleasant accommodations. Guides were furnished and two early morning flights were scheduled, also two evening camp fires. Among the places visited were the Grayling State trout hatchery; Hartwick Pine State park; the forest fire experiment station at Roscommon; Lake Margrethe and the Hanson State Military reservation. About fifty of the party enjoyed canoe trips down the AuSable River. The Jackpine warbler, a very rare bird, was discovered and reported by a group of the Auduboners.

In our column "Random Thoughts" published in last week's edition of the Avalanche we asked the question "How many gas pumps are there in Grayling, and where was the first one located?" We had no replies, but we did a little checking up on the subject and learned a lot of interesting things regarding service stations. In the early days of automobiles practically every auto owner kept a storage tank, and Dan-Hoeh, representing the Standard Oil Co. kept the tanks filled. In about the year 1913 Isborn Hanson and Frank Ahman established a filling station in the building that stands next to Shoppensons Annex, where they also conducted an auto repair business. The firm name was the Grayling Machinery Repair Co. Later this was moved to what is now the Ahman Machine Shop. Hans R. Nelson soon after established a service station on the South Side, near the lower AuSable bridge. Mr. Nelson operated there several years and later built a service station on the corner of Ionia and Cedar Streets on the then state trunkline-highway 41-18. This he later sold to Alfred Hanson. Mr. Nelson then started another station on the corner of Cedar and Ottawa, which station is now conducted by Parsons & Wakeley. For a time Harry Simpson and Joe Kraus had gas service in front of their respective stores on Michigan avenue. To answer the last question, there are now 14 gas service stations within the city limits. Besides there are two across from the Grayling golf course and one near the airport. According to good authority Hal Davis was the first one to own an auto in Grayling, and Esbern Hanson the next. The late N. P. Olson instituted the first auto livery and had a fleet of five cars. Other auto livers were operated by Jesse Schoonover, Dan Mosher, Lon Collen and Harry Pond. Jack Horn was probably the first auto mechanic here, being employed by Ahman and Hanson. George Burke is believed to have opened the first auto garage. Jesse Schoonover, Alfred Hanson and Nels Corwin later started garages. These firms still exist here and have the only garages here. Jess Schoonover is the oldest in the garage business in Grayling, using a small workshop at his home. Frank Beckrow was one of the first auto owners in Grayling. Also John Benson at one time conducted a garage service in the building now occupied by Grayling Laundry.

The Memorial trees, Chinese and American elm, which were recently set out at the Michelson Memorial Church, parsonage grounds were dedicated on Memorial Sunday during the morning worship service at the church. There was a simple and brief dedicatory service, the eleven trees being dedicated to the memory of Melvin A. Bates, Marie Cook, Sarah Jane Corwin, Edgar Cornell Flory, Charles McCullough, George McCullough, Charles and Helen Moran, Christian W. Olson, Nikolai Schlotz, George Sorenson and the Rev. Elliott W. Zoller.

Miss Virginia Charron, high school senior at Grayling, has been awarded a scholarship to Central State Teachers College, Mt. Pleasant, by the college scholarship committee.

Miss Mary Dunlop of Detroit was a weekend guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Martin.

Mrs. Kate Loskos visited her daughter Mrs. Clarence Ekens and family in Bay City Sunday. She brought her mother and little granddaughter both very ill with quinsy.

Miss Martha Uhlendorf, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Warner, visited in Midland Sunday, returning Monday. The enjoyable trip was with Clarence Rider by motorcycle.

Miss Effie Hunter of Flint is spending the week here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter. She was accompanied by her niece Dorothy Keely, who will be leaving for several weeks to visit Truman Ingram, Alonzo Heath, William Heric, Reginald Sheehy, Calvin McEvers, Leo Skinner and Harold Edwards, all of whom are employed by Kerry and Hanson Company at Big Bay, enjoying visiting at their respective homes from Saturday to Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Feldhauser of Ann Arbor visited over the weekend at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Carrie Feldhauser. They make one trip a year and enjoy meeting old friends again. Sunday the families spent at the Charles Feldhauser home in Maple Forest, when the latter celebrated his birthday anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson and daughters spent Monday in Lewiston with relatives of the former's.

Carl E. Johnson and son Robert and Miss Theresa Lofquist of Detroit spent the holiday at the Johnson cabin on the AuSable. Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Cohen and Mrs. Augusta Walt of Detroit visited Mr. and Mrs. Seth Chappel and other relatives. William E. McCullough and family of Highland Park enjoyed their summer home on the east branch of the AuSable over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Dunham, Mrs. S. D. Dunham and daughter Katherine accompanied Mrs. Henry Libcke and son Frederick to Grand Rapids Sunday.

Twin girls were born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kolka at Mercy Hospital Tuesday. Both are healthy babies; at birth Dorothy Mae weighed 7 pounds 5 ounces, while Dolores Mary tipped the scales at 7 pounds 3 1/4 ounces. This is the second pair of twins born to these parents, the others a girl and boy. With the new arrivals there are now ten children in the family.

Mrs. Ray Clement of Detroit gave a Frankennuth dinner for four Detroit guests at the Fischer Hotel dining room Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Clement were here visiting friends.

Paul Ford has accepted a position as timekeeper at the DuPont Powder plant, commencing his duties on day last week.

Mrs. Frank LaSprance and granddaughter Eleanor Johnson spent the weekend at the Misses Ingley cottage at Portage Lake. Miss Wilda Failing is supplying in the Stephan school down the river during the absence of Harold Bradley.

Mayor Hans Petersen left on a business trip to Lansing Tuesday. Herbert Oaks of Flint is visiting friends and relatives here for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kneff have left to spend the summer down the river. Joseph McLeod is taking Mr. Kneff's place as delivery man for the M. Simpson Grocery.

Oint Sorenson has purchased a new 1915 Model Ford car. George Biggs also has a new Ford car.

James Armstrong, George Colladay, Mrs. C. Ness, Mr. and Mrs. T. Shaw and daughter Dorothy, Mrs. Charles Green and Paul Ziebell and Helen spent Decoration Day at Lewiston.

There was considerable excitement at the Model bakery Saturday when the auto contest was to be decided. "The two leading contestants, Milton Hathaway and Jack Brisbane were present."

Mr. Robert Strong
Crawford County Avalanche
Grayling, Michigan

Dear Sir:

Your article on the front page Thursday, May 25, 1961, "New York Central Wants to Discontinue Bay City-Mackinaw Beeline", disturbs this writer no end.

Let me remind you that this is the last passenger train running north of Bay City to the northern part of our great State of Michigan. To lose this present day service would be an outright disgrace to all of the communities that are served by this passenger service. Having been associated with the railroad industry the past ten years, this writer questions the figures as stated in this article — "Operating at a terrific loss."

Now then, I strongly urge you to use all of the power and influence that you may have to protest this issue immediately to the Michigan Public Service Commission, the New York Central Railroad, and any other agency to which you may have access.

I thank you in advance for whatever you may be able to do.

Very truly yours,
W. J. Smith

$1.36 Paid Locally Per $1.00 Of Federal Aid

(Special to the Avalanche)

New York — How much of the money that the Federal government receives from Crawford County taxpayers to support its various aid programs comes back to the community through grants-in-aid?

How much financial assistance does the county get from Washington for urban-renewal, hospital construction, airport development, home loan insurance and the like in return for the amount it pays?

According to a study of the subject made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit research organization, and data obtained from other sources, some localities get back much less than they pay. Others get much more.

They show that the State of Michigan had a Federal aid burden of $300,500,000 in the fiscal year. What came back in grants to the state and local government was $220,900,000, the Foundation reports.

In other words, every $1.00 in Government aid cost local taxpayers $1.36.

In each state this ratio was different. It ran from a low of 16 cents in cost per $1.00 of aid, in the case of Alaska, to a high of $2.14 per $1.00 in New Jersey.

Crawford County taxpayers, on the basis of the latest figures, paid out an estimated $112,000 toward the aid program and got back some $82,000 in Federal assistance.

It represented a 74 percent return on the dollar.

The difference in the amount of benefits that go to one community compared with another, per dollar of cost, flow from the fact that the distribution of the funds is determined in Washington in terms of local requirements and not with the purpose of returning a dollar for dollar.

As a result, some communities get more than they put in and some get less.

There are now more than 100 grants-in-aid programs available to state and local governments, according to the Tax Foundation. They are listed in a booklet published by the Government under the title "Federal Activities Helpful to Communities."

They cover a wide range from the taking of aerial photographs of harbors and industrial areas and the organization of community development groups to sewage treatment construction and agricultural educational programs.

Climate Data

ture, February 1904, with a mean temperature of 4.2°, was the coldest on record, and July 1921, was warmest with 75.2° the average date of the last freezing temperature in the spring and the first in the fall are June 5th and September 9th, respectively.

Precipitation is heaviest during the growing crop season, averaging 65% of the annual total during the six months, April - September. Heaviest rainfall is in June with an average of 3.38 inches. Next is July with 3.77 inches. Driest month is February with an average of 1.16 inches. The greatest monthly record of rainfall is 8.66" which occurred in July 1934, and the driest month of record is 0.20" in November 1899 and February 1934.

The heaviest intensity of rainfall occurs in connection with thunderstorm activity, and the heaviest recorded 24-hour amount is 4.19" which occurred on May 28, 1945. Another heavy amount, 3.50" on July 16, 1900.

Snowfall averages 83.1 inches per winter, with considerable variation over the years. This is more than twice the amount received in southern portions of the State, and, coupled with lower temperatures, results in a much longer period with appreciable amounts on the ground.

Conditions are excellent for winter sports in the Grayling area, and skiing and tobogganing are successful businesses. Seven months of the year have measurable amounts, on the average, January has the largest average, 19.6 inches. The heaviest recorded for a single day is 14.0 inches on December 15, 1893; March 25, 1899, and March 9, 1942. The greatest one month is 51.0 inches in March 1899.

Cloudiness is greatest in the late fall and early winter, while sunshine percentage is highest in the spring and summer. Air passing over Lake Michigan picks up considerable moisture and warmth during late fall and early winter when temperature contrasts of the air and water are greatest, and increased cloudiness results when this air passes over the areas to the east of Lake Michigan. The entire Lower Peninsula of Michigan has increased cloudiness from these air currents during this period of the year, but also enjoys warmer temperatures than areas west of Lake Michigan.

Degree day data is provided as an index of heating requirements for buildings. For example, May averages 360 degree days and April, 730, which means that for an average April, fuel necessary for heating will be approximately twice that required for May. Degree days for a single day are obtained by subtracting the mean temperature from 65°. The need for the heating of buildings is considered none or slight if a day has an average temperature of 65° or higher.

529 IN COUNTY RECEIVE BENEFITS

By the end of 1960, more than 529 people in Crawford County were receiving old-age, survivors and disability insurance benefits. The total benefits paid to these people for December 1960 was $3,069, according to E. C. Wiles, manager of the Traverse City social security district office. "This is an increase in the number of people receiving benefits by about 14.4 percent over the same month last year," he said.

Nationally, almost 15 million people were receiving about a billion dollars a month in old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits at the close of 1960. Many of these people were made eligible for benefits by the changes in the law made in 1950 — such as the action in the amount of
